Date: Tuesday, December 15, 2009 12:34:53 PM

Hello Ken, Kelly, and Sho,

We've put together a portal to highlight the some of the statistics we're collecting about the Tor network. I thought you would be interested to see how tor is fairing in select countries, how many relays we have over time, bridges over time, and if tor is getting faster or slower. We've also documented the process and where the source files are so others can replicate or contradict our findings.

<http://metrics.torproject.org/> is the base portal.

Feel free to ask questions about what the data show or how we interpret it.

Enjoy.

We are happy you're interested in renewing our contract. Rather than send you a dense 20-page proposal, I've simply listed out possible work items in a menu-like format. We'd love it if you chose the items that keep Tor moving forward in the select areas that match your goals for the next year. Feel free to choose all of the options, too. And please ask questions about any of them.
